

RAFIKI REPORT

God's Word at Work

Fall 2026

A vision that CONTINUES

Even after Rosemary Jensen's passing, many still catch themselves thinking, I need to ask Rosemary about this. Her absence is deeply felt, but her vision continues to shape every part of Rafiki.

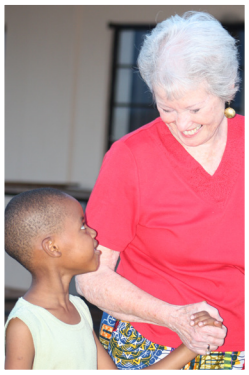

Rosemary's life was driven by one conviction: help people know God through his Word. She believed that knowing God is life's greatest purpose, and she ordered her own life and the ministry of Rafiki around that truth. It shapes the way Rafiki cares for children, trains teachers, develops curriculum, and equips churches. It explains why every Rafiki Village begins each day in God's Word, why every child under our care receives a Bible, and why the Rafiki Bible Study guides believers through all 66 books of Scripture. It fueled the distribution of more than 600,000 Bibles across Africa, and it continues to guide Rafiki's work today.

Rosemary never separated spiritual ministry from practical care. She believed people needed both the hope of the gospel and opportunities to flourish. Her desire to help people know God led naturally to a passion for classical Christian education, care for orphans and widows, and strengthening churches throughout Africa.

She also believed that God's work deserved wholehearted effort. In her seventies alone, Rosemary helped oversee the establishment of Rafiki Villages across ten African countries, the development of the Rafiki Bible Study and school curriculum, and the relocation of the Home Office to Florida. Retirement never appealed to her. She often said, "I want to die broke and exhausted," reflecting her determination to spend herself completely for Christ and his kingdom.

Today, that vision continues. Children still gather around God's Word each morning, tracing verses with their fingers as the school day begins. Teachers stand before classrooms, faithfully opening Scripture and planting seeds of truth in the hearts of their students. Pastors and church leaders receive Bibles and resources that help them learn and teach God's Word with greater clarity. Missionaries continue serving communities through education, discipleship, and compassionate care. Across Africa, lives continue to be transformed as people encounter the truth of Scripture.

The greatest way to honor Rosemary is not simply to remember what God accomplished through her but to continue the work she loved. By God's grace, Rafiki will keep helping people know God through his Word and raise their standard of living through education—one Bible study, one class, one day at a time.

A shared calling. A continuing vision.

Rosemary Jensen and Karen Elliott served side-by-side for more than three decades, united by a desire to help people know God through his Word.

Front cover: In the remote desert community of Kakwanyang, Kenya, a small school brings new opportunities to children whose families have long lived as nomadic herders. About 200 boys and girls attend the school. Using the Rafiki Bible Study and curriculum, teachers fill their classrooms with games, songs, reading, worksheets, and hands-on activities.

A calling to SERVE

Dear Rafikis,

This is the first Rafiki Report without a personal letter from our founder, Rosemary Jensen, who went home to be with the LORD on May 31, 2026. We miss her greatly. Yet the work she began continues, and we at the Home Office, in our ten Rafiki Villages, and at Rafiki Classical Academy are moving forward with the mission and vision of Rafiki, asking God for an abundance of fruit.

As we face this transition, I thought it would be helpful for you, our partners in this work, to know a little more about my own call to serve the LORD through Rafiki.

I grew up in Houston, Texas, and came to know the Lord in high school through friends who seemed to know Jesus personally. I studied finance at university and, after my father died during my senior year, returned to Houston to be near my widowed mother. I began my career as a commercial lender, working with businesses along the Houston Ship Channel—an education in its own right!

During those years, God was expanding my heart for ministry. Through Bible Study Fellowship (BSF) and my church, I became increasingly involved in serving the marginalized. We started a home for single mothers, brought the gospel to people with HIV, and taught the Bible to women recovering from substance abuse. A missions class also stirred in me a desire to serve overseas.

I went from asking, "Why should I go?" to asking, "Is there any reason why I should not go?"

Then I met Rosemary Jensen.

In 1990, Rosemary asked if I would go to Jos, Nigeria, to teach a BSF class and serve as a financial consultant to evangelical churches in West Africa. The opportunity was so tailor-made, I would have been a fool to say no. How do you place a banker on the mission field? God knew exactly how. I left for Nigeria that August.

My first day in Nigeria, I was absolutely terrified. The second day, I felt like I had come home.

I served in Nigeria for 12 years, teaching Bible study, serving the church, and helping establish the Rafiki Village there. In 2002, at Rosemary's request, I returned to the United States to work at the Rafiki Home Office.

What a privilege it has been to work alongside Rosemary all these years. Together, we established the Orphan Care Program, PreK–Grade 12 schools, the Rafiki Bible Study, the Rafiki Classical Christian Curriculum, and relationships with more than 30 African church partners. We also had the privilege of helping establish Rafiki Classical Academy in Florida. As you may know, I have never married—and yet I have 4100 children and counting!

There is much more to the story, and I would love to share it with you. Come visit us at the Home Office in Florida!

But enough about me. The real story is what God is doing through Rafiki. In this report, you will read about how God is working through staff and missionaries across ten African countries and at Rafiki Classical Academy. You will see how children are growing in knowledge of the Lord, how graduates are serving their communities, how churches and schools are embracing the Rafiki Education System, and how God continues to open doors for the ministry.

We are grateful to so many of you who responded to our July letter [https://RafikiFoundation.org/Files/PDF/July%20to%206200.pdf] about expanded opportunities. Your response was extraordinarily generous. As we enter the final quarter of this year, we ask you to continue praying and giving so that we can enter 2027 with confidence, trusting God to provide everything needed for the work He has given us.

Thank you for standing with Rafiki.

REFORMING COMMUNITIES WITH RAFIKI BIBLE STUDY

RAFIKI BIBLE STUDY PROGRAM

Evana is in fifth grade at Rafiki's school in Ethiopia. She comes from an Orthodox family where, like many households in her area, tradition, folk belief, and truth shape their understanding of Scripture. So when her teacher opens the Rafiki Bible Study (RBS) each day, Evana pays attention.

Somewhere in those lessons, she stopped simply learning about Christ and started believing in him.

Evana does not keep her faith to herself. Every Saturday, she gathers her parents and siblings, opens her Bible, and teaches them the lesson she learned that week. When asked why she does this, she said, "I do not want to go to heaven by myself."

Her words reveal a conviction beyond her years. With courage and love, she brings God's Word into her home—a fifth grader teaching her parents because she wants her family to know and love her Savior. What began as a classroom lesson is now reaching an entire household.

This is the impact the RBS aims to have: one faithful teacher opens God's Word, one child hears and believes, and one changed life begins reaching a family and community.

The Rafiki Bible Study walks users through all 66 books of the Bible, with study questions for group discussion and teaching notes to guide each passage.

Start a group of your own and see what happens when God's Word spreads from one person to the next. Visit our resource website to explore the studies.

BUILDING CAREERS AND STRENGTHENING COMMUNITIES

ORPHAN CARE PROGRAM

This year, 250 former Rafiki residents are pursuing higher education with a Rafiki Scholarship in a wide range of professional fields. To date, 276 former residents have completed secondary school, 164 have graduated from higher education programs, and 14 are married, most with children of their own.

Across the Rafiki Villages, graduates continue to demonstrate the lasting impact of the Orphan Care Program as they establish careers and serve their communities. In the past year alone, 75 students completed higher education, with many entering the workforce. Uganda graduated seven students with degrees in accounting, education, and information systems and technology. Liberia celebrated one of its first tertiary graduates, who earned a certificate in journalism and quickly found employment. Malawi was proud to see several graduates, including Paul, who earned a bachelor's degree in information and communication technology (ICT). He now runs his own business in Mzuzu and provides contract support for Rafiki's computer systems. In Kenya, Anne earned a diploma in accounting and is now an accountant in Nairobi. Zambia reached a significant milestone with its first Rafiki graduate to become a missionary. Rabecca graduated from the Rafiki Teachers College and, with her husband, is planting a church and establishing a school in rural Zambia. These graduates reflect the diverse ways Rafiki alumni are using their education to provide for themselves, strengthen their communities, and faithfully serve Christ.

Recent graduate Paul has started his own business, Rafiki Village Malawi.

EQUIPPING TEACHERS AND STRENGTHENING SCHOOLS

RAFIKI TEACHERS COLLEGE PROGRAM

For several years, Rafiki's Teachers College in Nigeria has partnered with MKAR University to offer three-year diplomas in classical Christian education. This summer, the National Universities Commission officially approved Rafiki's new Bachelor of Arts in Classical Christian Education. We will enroll our first bachelor's degree students in October, giving students the opportunity to pursue an accredited degree in classical Christian education through Rafiki. This is Rafiki's second accredited bachelor's degree offering in Africa.

Since the start of the Teachers College Program, 571 teachers have completed at least one year of study, not including those presently enrolled. Many graduates have gone on to serve as teachers in Rafiki's schools and outreach schools. Martha in Uganda is a beautiful example of the mission of Rafiki lived out. She came to Rafiki because she was called by God to be a teacher. There, she deepened her knowledge of the Lord and learned about classical Christian education. The Lord called her to serve in the Lusanja Junior Primary School, a mission school in Uganda using Rafiki's curriculum and Bible study. Her desire to serve there grew from gratitude to those who helped her through difficult circumstances, allowing her to become someone with the capacity to contribute to her community. This school serves many poor children. Martha desires to offer them what faithful Christians provided to her by God's grace.

EQUIPPING FAMILIES AND SHAPING STUDENTS

RAFIKI SCHOOL PROGRAM

Rafiki Headmasters have done an excellent job educating day student parents on Rafiki's mission, vision, and goals of classical Christian education. As a result, parent-teacher conference attendance now exceeds 90%, and more African parents are choosing to keep their children in Rafiki Schools through secondary education rather than transferring to traditionally preferred boarding schools. Applications continue to soar, with one school receiving more than 150 qualified applicants in a single day for 40 openings in its 3-year-old class. Parents are pleased not only with their children's academic success but also with their growth in Christian character and knowledge of the Lord. Through child sponsorship, this education is available to families who otherwise could not afford it.

This year, we hope to encourage classical Christian schools to have each class sponsor a Rafiki student in the same grade level. This has been successful at a school in Mississippi. We are offering a Sponsorship Box to help teachers and homeschool families teach their children about Rafiki's work, their sponsored child's country, and other ways to support the mission. Use the QR code to learn more.

Last year, we held a Rafiki-wide art competition with beautiful submissions from all ten Villages and Rafiki Classical Academy in Florida. We were encouraged to see students' growing knowledge of artistic technique and skill, as well as how their biblical worldview shaped their creative expression.

Stories of CHANGE

From Running Away to RUNNING THE RACE

Rabecca's story is one of quiet transformation—filled with hardship, shaped by faithful care, and sustained by God's grace.

Loss came early and left little hope for Rabecca. When her parents died, she lived with her grandmother and aunt, but the home offered no real shelter. Her grandmother disappeared for extended periods, and her aunt, already stretched thin by the needs of her own children, had little left over to give. Food supplies came inconsistently, and unpredictability shaped their daily lives. By the time Rafiki staff met her, Rabecca had learned that strangers meant danger, not help. She saw them and ran.

First Rafiki orphan called to be a missionary.

Yet even in those early moments, hope began to emerge. When Rabecca started attending the Rafiki Village School, it did not take her teachers long to see what years of instability had almost buried. She hungered to learn. She met patience with trust and trust with growth. It soon became clear that a stable, nurturing environment could change the course of her life.

In 2009, Rafiki introduced her to that environment. Rabecca joined the Orphan Care Program and made Rafiki Village Zambia her home. Stability, education, and daily instruction in God's Word shaped her new rhythm of life. The girl who once fled from strangers transformed into someone almost unrecognizable. She stepped into leadership at school, serving as Head Girl, and engaged actively in church life—ushering, making announcements, and serving others. Each responsibility demanded something more of her, and each time, she rose to meet it.

Her faith rose with her. Rabecca did not simply learn about Scripture; she fell in love with it, returning to it again and again with a hunger to understand more. Those around her noticed a joy that seemed to survive everything meant to crush it and a warmth she extended to everyone she met.

Rabecca graduated from the Rafiki School in 2020 with plans to study mass communication and the hope of working in media. But somewhere in that season, through prayer, a different calling took hold, quieter but more persistent: teaching. She enrolled in the Rafiki Teachers College to pursue a teaching diploma.

God continued to guide Rabecca in unexpected ways. At church, she met Santos, a theology student preparing for a life of ministry. They began serving and worshiping side by side. Through counsel and shared conviction, their relationship blossomed. Santos and Rabecca married in September 2025.

Today, the couple serves as missionaries, church planting in eastern Zambia in a community that hungers for truth. Throughout the week, they meet with people to answer questions, teach hymns, and continue the work of discipleship. The work is demanding and exposes many needs, especially for Bibles and discipleship resources, yet they continue in faith and trust the Lord to provide.

Rabecca's life shows how God can bring steady growth—from fear and uncertainty to a life of faith and leadership. Now Santos and Rabecca build not only a life of their own but also help build the Church, investing in others and pointing their community to the hope they have found in Christ.

The Road to REDEMPTION

Christopher lost both of his parents before he was old enough to understand what that meant. After his mother died, he lived with his grandmother in a small, unfinished home already crowded with more than a dozen relatives. No one had steady work. Meals often ran short, and their fragile stability stretched to its limits. In time, his grandmother sought help, and Social Welfare referred Christopher to Rafiki.

He arrived at Rafiki Village Malawi in 2007, a quiet boy who observed far more than he spoke. The staff noticed the sharp mind behind his silence—a mind in need of love, nurture, and opportunities. His days took on the pattern of school and Scripture, read, taught, and lived out around him. The language was unfamiliar, and the truths still harder to grasp, but patient teaching and consistent care placed those truths before him each day.

But growth in knowledge does not always reach the heart. As Christopher grew older and left the Village, he fell in with a group that enticed him down a destructive path. A difficult and painful season followed, marked by repeated theft and disobedience. Eventually, those choices brought serious consequences. Christopher went to prison—a moment that revealed both the weight of his actions and a turning point in his life. Yet even there, he did not fade from care.

Separated from the influences that had drawn him away from Christ, Christopher faced the truth of his situation. The seeds planted over many years at Rafiki—through Scripture, teaching, and faithful care—broke through and began to take root. Christopher repented, not only in words but with a growing desire to live differently.

Upon his release, his life reflected a noticeable change. No longer the boy who stole in the darkness, Christopher now walked in the light. He requested the opportunity to speak to Rafiki students, hoping to save them from a similar path. He spoke openly of his decisions, of prison, of the time he wasted, and of the new purpose that began to take shape.

With renewed direction, Christopher set a fresh course: pursuing studies in information and communication technology. The path did not come easily. One semester short of completion, academic setbacks cost him his scholarship. For Christopher, this became another moment to persevere. Rather than walk away, he chose to work and save.

Christopher joined the Rafiki maintenance and grounds team, where his character was evident in everyday faithfulness. He worked tirelessly, often outpacing others, and approached even small tasks with diligence and care. When others slowed or took extended breaks, Christopher gently called them back and led by example. His consistency reshaped how others saw him, and the boy once shackled by sin became a man marked by discipline and integrity.

With his sights fixed on his unfinished schooling, Christopher set aside what earnings he could spare. Through steady effort and sacrifice, he saved enough to return and complete his final semester. All the while, he carried himself with the same diligence and integrity that have marked this season of his life.

Christopher continues forward, growing in maturity and carrying the lessons of his past—the weight of where he has been folded into everything he is still becoming in Christ.

SUPPORTING WIDOWS AND GROWING OPPORTUNITY

The Rafiki Widows Program continues to provide meaningful opportunities for widows in Africa to use their skills and creativity to support themselves and their families. Through the program, handmade products from Rafiki Villages are sold through a variety of outlets, connecting the work of these women with supporters around the world.

Sales through May 2026 increased 12% over the same period last year. Growth has been especially encouraging through the Rafiki Exchange in Mount Dora, Florida, and online.

The purpose of these sales is not just to move product from Africa to our customers. Your purchases help create a market for goods crafted by women in the Widows Program. Through their skills and hard work, they can support their families and communities.

The program began the year with a significant inventory of products, so purchasing has been paused while Rafiki explores new ways to make these items available. We need your help! Consider hosting a sale at your church, Christmas market, women's group, or other community event. This can introduce others to the ministry while helping move inventory and provide continued opportunities for the women who make these products.

Through the Widows Program, Rafiki seeks to provide economic opportunity while honoring the dignity, abilities, and God-given talents of women as they faithfully care for their families.

STARTING EACH DAY WITH GOD'S WORD

On August 13, 2026, Rafiki Classical Academy (RCA) opened its doors to 80 students for its fourth academic year. Located at the Rafiki Foundation's Home Office in Florida, RCA's mission is threefold: minister, model, and mobilize. RCA ministers to the local community through daily Bible study and classical Christian education, models the Rafiki Education System for missionaries preparing for Africa, and mobilizes others to establish classical Christian schools using the Rafiki Curriculum.

The local community is being richly served through RCA. Since the Academy began, students have engaged in 300 hours of Bible study, studying the Pentateuch, Joshua, Matthew, and Mark. Hymn singing permeates the day, while Scripture and catechism questions are memorized. Teachers read aloud books that develop the moral imagination—Pre-K alone enjoys more than 850 books each year! Students master math facts, explore the natural world, sharpen writing and rhetoric skills, and glean wisdom from history. They memorize timeless poetry, apply music theory to instruments, practice the six elements of art, and cultivate Christian virtues. All of this is facilitated through the Rafiki Bible Study and Rafiki Curriculum. One grandparent recently said, "My children and grandchildren have been to many Christian schools, but there is none like this school."

The Academy is raising funds to add modular classrooms and build a permanent K–8 campus. These facilities will allow RCA to welcome more students, model the curriculum for missionaries and educators, and mobilize others to establish classical Christian schools. Please pray and participate.

Expanding Outreach
ACROSS AFRICA

Open a classroom door in the Nairobi Diocese today, and you will likely find children bent over the Rafiki Bible Study. This is one sign of the doors that God has constantly swung open for us in the past year. From printing presses in the U.S. to church conferences in Kampala and Lusaka, 2026 has been a season of Rafiki's Outreach ministry stretching further than ever before as God continues to knit together schools, churches, and communities around his Word.

The numbers themselves tell a story of persistent growth. Rafiki's partner schools have nearly doubled in one year, climbing from 110 to 197. The Rafiki Bible Study has followed the same trajectory—what started as an effort reaching just over 10,000 children in 2024 has blossomed into a movement of roughly 57,000 Africans now studying Scripture together through schools, small groups, and Sunday school classes.

Behind every one of those numbers is a shipment, a printed page, or a plane ticket. In the first half of 2026 alone, ten ocean containers loaded with Bibles from Crossway made their way from China to Rafiki Villages in eight countries. Once unloaded, the 227,000 Bibles will be placed into the hands of church partners and ministries, alongside 5000 Global Pastors' Book Sets bound for pastors across Rafiki's ten countries.

Numbers alone fail to capture the relationships driving this growth. A visit from Archbishop Sapit of the Anglican Church of Kenya (ACK) opened the door to a flourishing partnership. We are now set to deliver 10,000 study Bibles to ACK pastors and tens of thousands more Bibles for children. Access to these Bibles come from our faithful generous partners Ligonier Ministries and Crossway. That same spirit of partnership carried into the Nairobi Diocese, where more than 500 teachers were trained, and 30 schools plan to bring the Rafiki Bible Study into their classrooms.

The interest spreads throughout Africa as new ties form with the Church of the Province of Central Africa, spanning Botswana, Malawi, Zambia, and Zimbabwe, and with the Baptist Convention in Liberia. Rafiki is also laying groundwork with church leaders in South Sudan, hoping to bring theological and educational resources where it is needed most. This, in conjunction with regular visits from church leaders across Africa, reminds us that Rafiki's Outreach ministry is measured not only by what we ship but by the relationships we build.

All of this activity has kept the presses running at the Home Office. Rafiki printed just over twelve million pages of curriculum and Bible study material in 2025. That total was matched in just the first six months of 2026. If momentum continues, this year's printed pages will top twenty million, a milestone that would have seemed unthinkable only a few years ago.

Every school that opens its doors, every Bible that reaches a pastor, every leader who joins in partnership is a thread in a much larger story—the story of a mission still expanding, still reaching, still pointing people toward God's Word. To God be the glory!

ANSWERED PRAYERS

Today, God continues to open doors that reflect Rosemary's vision. Through your prayers, faithful service, and generous support, he has enabled Rafiki to provide Bible studies, Bibles, theological resources, and Christian education to churches, schools, pastors, teachers, and students across Africa. This year, we have seen God provide remarkable opportunities to expand this work:

- New outreach opportunities in South Sudan through partnerships with Anglican church leaders.
- Churches in Kenya using the Rafiki Bible Study (RBS) to disciple new believers.
- More than 1000 teachers in Uganda receiving biblical worldview training and the RBS.
- 197 partner schools across Africa use the Rafiki Curriculum and RBS to provide Christ-centered education to thousands of students.
- Continued Bible and theological resource distribution throughout all ten Rafiki countries. By the end of 2026, God willing, Rafiki will have distributed more than 700,000 Bibles across Africa.
- Development of the Rafiki Complete Bible Commentary to equip pastors across Africa.
- Continued growth of Rafiki Classical Academy as a model for classical Christian education.
